OEM Evaluation Program

Summary

Qualified first time Operator Control Station (OCS) users, or first time users of a new OCS product, can get product to evaluate for 30 days.

How You May Qualify for an Evaluation System:

The OCS is an alternative solution to using conventional systems with a PLC and a display or a proprietary control. We have an OEM Evaluation Program to make it easier for you to evaluate OCS software features, operator interface text or graphic displays and control, and network functionality. You may qualify to get an evaluation system by doing the following:

1st Time Users:

- Contact us at apgsales@heapg.com and ask for an evaluation system.
- Agree to meet with our local distributor or sales representative to discuss your application and define the evaluation system.
- Return the evaluation system in 30 days or purchase it.

1st Time Users of New Products:

- Contact your local OCS distributor or sales representative and ask for an evaluation system or product.
- Meet with them to define what you want to evaluate.
- Return the evaluation system or product in 30 days or purchase it.

During the evaluation period, you can contact your distributor or sales representative for technical assistance; and you will have access to our Technical Support Center regarding any in-depth application questions you may have.
